

Queens Party Hall: what we found, and how we would help

Prepared for your Social Media Manager & Meta Ads Specialist opening · September 17, 2026 · Public checks of queenspartyhall.com and brooklynpartyhall.com

IN ONE PARAGRAPH

Both venue sites are clear and well indexed, and the flat rate, no per person fee offer is exactly what a price conscious party planner wants to hear. The risk is in tracking. You want Meta ads to produce inquiries, tours and bookings, but we could not see a Meta Pixel on either site, and brooklynpartyhall.com shows no analytics at all. Without those, ad spend cannot be tied back to bookings.

WHAT IS ALREADY WORKING

- Both sites load over HTTPS, and queenspartyhall.com has GA4 and Tag Manager installed.
- The title "Party Halls in Queens | Flat Rate, No Per-Person Fee" leads with your strongest offer.
- Neighbourhood pages such as Queens Village, South Ozone Park, East Flatbush and Prospect Lefferts appear in public search.
- Structured data is present and both sitemaps are referenced in robots.txt.
- Instagram, Facebook and YouTube are linked, and both footers are current for 2026.

FINDINGS BY RISK

Brooklyn tracking	High	brooklynpartyhall.com shows no Google Analytics, Tag Manager or Meta Pixel in its homepage code. Ads that send people to the Brooklyn venues cannot be measured, and there is no retargeting audience of people who viewed a hall.
Queens Meta Pixel	Medium	A Meta Pixel is not visible in the queenspartyhall.com page code. Tag Manager is installed, so it may load from there. The Pixel is what lets Meta find more people like those who inquire. A two minute check in Tag Manager confirms it.
Load time	Medium	queenspartyhall.com took about 3.6 seconds to load in our check, compared with about 1.6 seconds for the Brooklyn site. Most ad clicks come from phones. Every extra second before the page appears loses some of the people you paid to reach.
Social link	Low	brooklynpartyhall.com links to the Queens Instagram and YouTube accounts. That works if one account serves both venues. If Brooklyn has its own, linking it keeps visitors on the right venue.
Image alt text	Low	7 of the 19 homepage images on queenspartyhall.com have no alt text. A quick fix for accessibility and image search.

WHAT WE WOULD DO FIRST

- Install and test the Meta Pixel and lead events on both sites before new ad spend goes out.
- Build Meta campaigns for inquiries and tours, with retargeting for people who viewed a hall.
- Plan and schedule posts and Reels from your photos and videos, with captions that lead to a tour.
- Work with your sales team so each lead is marked as a tour or booking.
- Send a simple weekly report: spend, inquiries, cost per lead, tours and bookings.

A USEFUL WAY TO START

If you bring us on for this role, the first week includes a tracking check across both sites with a written fix list for your website specialist, at no extra cost.

WHO WE ARE

Balay ni Bruno & Co. is a small operational support studio. You hire one person and get a team behind them: websites, email, social content, CRM automation and reporting that all speak with one voice.

- For Freccia Construction, a custom builder in Austin, Texas, we fixed conversion tracking into their CRM before their Google Ads campaign went live this month.
- We run social content, including weekly Reels, for Freccia Construction.
- For JR Signing Services, a Texas notary signing agency, we run lead generation and email marketing through GoHighLevel.

HOW WE CHECKED

Checked from the outside on September 17, 2026: homepage code and headings for both sites, tracking tags, robots.txt and sitemaps, structured data, image alt text, linked social profiles, a public site search of both domains. We did not log in to anything and we have no access to your analytics or ad accounts, so anything below marked not checked is exactly that.

- Your Meta ad account, Tag Manager contents and lead data.
- Your Google Business Profiles and reviews.
- Page speed scores, because Google's PageSpeed service did not respond during our check. Load times above are a single check from our location.
