

FireBoard Labs: what we found, and how we would help

Prepared for your eCommerce Specialist opening · September 16, 2026 · Public checks of fireboard.com

IN ONE PARAGRAPH

Your current WordPress store is in good health: it loads quickly, it is well indexed, and Tag Manager and the Meta Pixel are already installed. The biggest risk is not the new Shopify theme, it is the switch itself. Every product and category address will change when you move, and the tracking you rely on today does not move across on its own. Get those two things right and the new store starts with everything the old one has already earned.

WHAT IS ALREADY WORKING

- The site loads over HTTPS in about 1.2 seconds on our check, with a mobile viewport set.
- Google Tag Manager and the Meta Pixel are installed.
- A sitemap index updated on September 14 is referenced in robots.txt, and structured data is present.
- A public site search shows your pages are well indexed.
- Instagram, YouTube, X and Facebook are all linked from the site.

FINDINGS BY RISK

Migration: page addresses	High	Store addresses use WooCommerce paths such as /shop/ and /product-category/. Shopify uses /products/ and /collections/, so every product and category address will change. Without a redirect from each old address to its new one on launch day, pages that already rank in search return errors and the traffic they bring in has to be earned again.
Migration: tracking	High	Tag Manager and the Meta Pixel are live on the WordPress site today. They do not carry over to Shopify automatically. If purchase and add to cart events are not rebuilt and tested before the switch, ad platforms lose conversion data during the exact weeks you want to compare the old store with the new one.
Image alt text	Medium	39 of the 65 images on the homepage have no alt text. Alt text helps accessibility and image search. The product import during a migration is the cheapest moment to fix it.
Headings	Low	The homepage has two H1 headings, and one is split by styling so the page code reads "I ntroducing the world's first dual-band wireless temperature probe". One clear main heading tells search engines what the page is about. Worth getting right in the new theme.
Footer	Low	The footer copyright still shows 2025. A small trust signal, easy to set to update itself in Shopify.

WHAT WE WOULD DO FIRST

- Build the full redirect map from your current sitemap before any theme work, so launch day has a line for every product and category.
- Rebuild Tag Manager, GA4 and Meta Pixel events on Shopify and confirm each one with a test order before switching over.
- Design and customize the Shopify theme using fireboard.com as the base guide, with suggestions from top performing Shopify stores in your space.
- Fill in image alt text and clean headings during the product import instead of after.
- Watch for broken addresses for the first 30 days after launch and fix anything that slipped through.

A USEFUL WAY TO START

If you bring us on for this role, the first week includes the complete old to new redirect map and a tracking checklist for your Kansas City team, at no extra cost. Both are yours to keep whoever builds the theme.

WHO WE ARE

Balay ni Bruno & Co. is a small operational support studio. You hire one person and get a team behind them: websites, email, social content, CRM automation and reporting that all speak with one voice.

- We build and run live client websites, including the Shopify store at srivierhair.com for a haircare brand we work with now.
- Earlier, RJ led the Shopify build, product listings and brand graphics for Crown Limited Supply, an e-commerce merch brand.
- For Freccia Construction, a custom builder in Austin, Texas, we set up ad conversion tracking into their CRM and confirmed it worked before any campaign went live.

HOW WE CHECKED

Checked from the outside on September 16, 2026: homepage code and headings, tracking tags, robots.txt and sitemap, structured data, image alt text, linked social profiles, a public site search of your domain. We did not log in to anything and we have no access to your analytics or ad accounts, so anything below marked not checked is exactly that.

- Your Google Analytics, Search Console and ad account data.
- Page speed scores, because Google's PageSpeed service did not respond during our check.
- Social follower and engagement numbers.
- Your Shopify development store, if one already exists.
